Different types of technology that people use to communicate

Different types of technology are being made each day. Below are some different types of technology that people use to communicate.

Email: Messages sent from one person to another. It is the same as sending a written letter to a friend except you type an email and send it to an email address using a computer.

Mobile Phone: Provides a quick way to write and send an SMS (text message), an MMS (picture message) or make a phone call.

Chat: Communication between two people using a computer. The chat appears on the screen after you have typed it. It is like being in a room talking to people except that you are typing your messages on a computer.

Blogs: Web pages that are like a diary. They usually have new things put on them each day by the author who owns the blog.

Social Networking: A website that can have profiles of people, blogs, chat and messaging.
