SPACEWISE DESIGN TASK

Read this document carefully and write meanings for the highlighted words / paragraphs. An example is given as you hover the mouse over the word “Redesign”. Click on the highlighted areas to enter your descriptions.

Design situation

Public places or spaces are used by numbers of people and often for different purposes. Over time the uses of public spaces change as do the needs of the people who use them. In many instances public spaces no longer suit changing uses or the changing needs of those who might use them. There are opportunities to improve public spaces by re-designing and developing them.

Design task

Redesign a local public space so that it better meets the needs of those who use it or who may use it.

Your proposal

This is like a sales pitch and should include drawings, photos, sample materials and/or a multi media presentation. Models may be produced as a means of communicating details of the solution but are not essential. If you create a model, remember it is a 3 dimensional means of communicating your ideas and is only a small part of your design project. The development proposal must include information about the existing situation, the identified needs of users, details of the design solution including diagrams, plans and images of what the solution will look like.